

COUNTY COURT DISPOSES OF MUCH BUSINESS AND EXCUSES TRIAL JURORS

Watkins Pleads Guilty and Gets Minimum of 20 Years—Baby Deserter's Sentence Suspended, As Is That of Slashing Mrs. Cione.

George Watkins, the negro who shot and killed another negro at the Staples brickyard last summer, withdrew his plea of not guilty to the crime charged and entered a plea of guilty before Judge Fowler in county court this morning, and was sentenced to not less than twenty years or more than life at hard labor in Clinton State prison at Dannemora. William D. Brinnier, who appeared for Watkins stated to the court that Watkins realized the seriousness of the crime and wishing to atone in some way for the act and therefore entered the plea of guilty. Before sentence was pronounced Watkins in answer to the usual questions said he was 36 years old. Had been born in Richmond, Va., and was married. His last place of residence was Coxsack, N. Y. He was a common laborer and could not read or write. Was temperate and had never before been convicted and had had religious instruction in the Baptist church.

After the sentence of from twenty years to life had been imposed by the court Watkins addressing the court said that he wished to thank Mr. Brinnier for all he had done for him, as that was the only way he would get out of the county jail. District Attorney Traver moved the case of The People vs. Frances Sisco. She was indicted for deserting a child at Glasgow on July 31st. William D. Brinnier, Jr., who appeared for defendant, asked that clemency be shown as the defendant had two children and a family to take care of. She was sentenced to six months in the county jail and sentence suspended during her good behavior.

In the case of Amelia Cione, the plea of not guilty was changed to guilty and she was sentenced to the women's prison at Auburn for a term of not more than two years or less than one, the prison sentence being suspended during good behavior. Mrs. Cione, a resident of this city, was charged with slashing another Italian with a razor. In explaining the case to the court, Mr. Brinnier, who appeared for the defendant, said that the affair had been a little love affair. Mrs. Cione had had trouble with the Italian and had cut him with the razor and he later met the woman on North street and had cut her. She exhibited a scar in the shape of a cross on her cheek where she had been cut.

In the case of The People vs. Claude Delamater, the defendant's lawyer, John DeVany, was absent and LeRoy Lounsbury appeared for defendant and stated that he wished to change his plea of not guilty to guilty and asked that the court defer sentencing Delamater until Mr. DeVany could appear. Delamater, who is on parole in the custody of his attorney, will be sentenced later.

The cases of The People vs. Horton and Junior, charged with robbery in the first degree, committed in the town of Saugerties on July 11, when they robbed Sheldon Teetsell, a chauffeur, was held open as the defendants had not arrived in town. The cases against both these young men on a charge of carrying concealed weapons were also held open.

Both the case of The People vs. Oliver J. Auchmoody, grand larceny in the first degree, and that of The People vs. Louis Bregman went over the term. The Auchmoody case by consent and the Bregman case with the understanding that it would be tried at the January term of court.

The case of The People vs. John J. Hines, charged with assault in the second degree, committed in the town of Esopus on March 14, 1919, was held until later in the day. The People vs. Augustus O'Connor was also held until later.

With the understanding that the case would be tried in January the case of The People vs. Luigi and John Castiglione went over the term. As it had been expected that there could be some cases tried at this time Mr. Brinnier was not ready with the case of The People vs. Edward McGinnis and District Attorney Traver agreed to pass the case.

The case of The People vs. Corbett, Kelly and Saunders were all three held over the term. District Attorney Traver stated that as this was the first time the cases had been on the calendar they would go over the term.

As Mr. Van Etten, attorney for the defendant, was engaged elsewhere the case of The People vs. Peter Nalis, Jr., was held until later.

There was no further work for the court and all trial jurors were excused for the term and court took a recess until 2 o'clock this afternoon when some of the cases not discussed this morning were to be taken care of.

To French at First Bench.

The Rev. John H. Deyo, pastor of the Congregational Church, Danbury, Conn., an eminent poet, orator, will preach at the morning and evening services at the First Church in this city on Sunday.

HORTON AND JUNIOR GUILTY

County court reconvened at two o'clock this afternoon and Howard Horton and Thomas Junior who were charged with robbing Sheldon Teetsell on the Saugerties road pleaded guilty. They were sentenced by Judge Fowler to the Elmira Reformatory until adjudged by law.

In the case of the People against John J. Hines who was charged with assault in the second degree, District Attorney Traver announced that the complainant did not wish to press the charge, and that the defendant had made restitution in so far as it was possible. The district attorney moved for the dismissal of the indictment which was granted.

Mrs. Mary Austin, who was sentenced Tuesday afternoon to pay a fine of $200 or serve six months in the county jail and was paroled in the custody of her attorney, John DeVany, until today, when she was to pay her fine, did not appear in court, and the district attorney asked for a bench warrant for her immediate arrest.

Court then adjourned until 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

BIG CASES IN APPELLATE DIV'N

The appellate division of supreme court, Third Department, has handed down decisions in a number of the most important cases arising in this country in recent years. Histories of these cases, the decisions in which are as follows, will be published in The Freeman tomorrow:

Judge Howard's order setting aside the award made to James H. Sands by Ashokan Dam Commission No. 5 was affirmed.

Judge Hasbrouck's decision denying the motion of the claimant, Buck, in the Yale quarry case, was reversed with $10 and disbursements. The case was remitted to special term.

Judge Rude's decision dismissing the complaint made by Tripo Kristovic against Charles H. Van Buren and Samuel W. Day, stock brokers, was reversed with costs to the appellant on the grounds that the evidence presented a question for consideration of a jury.

The great bat case of Frank W. Terwilliger against Browning, King & Company in which Terwilliger received a verdict, was reversed. The case was tried before Judge Howard.

Supreme Court Justice Harold J. Hinman of Albany has handed down a decision in the partition action brought by George L. Patterson against Willis C. Patterson and others in which he set aside the referee's deed of sale of the Patterson property on the Keykote to John D. Schoonmaker and others, and orders a re-sale.

SOUTH RONDOUT FENCE MUST GO

Appellate Division Says Hiltbrand Company Cannot Maintain Fence Across Center Street.

The appellate division of the supreme court on Wednesday handed down a decision in the case of John Stoult, respondent, against the C. Hiltbrand Dry Dock Company, Inc., which was argued recently before that court by Frank W. Brooks for Mr. Stoult and by Amos Van Etten for the Hiltbrand Company.

The action was brought to restrain the Hiltbrand Company from maintaining a fence across Center street in South Rondout, which they had erected. The Hiltbrand Company brought proceedings under the state highway law before the town superintendent of highways to abandon Center street, but Mr. Stoult contended that he had a right of way through the street which could not be extinguished by the town superintendent. Consequently he retained Chris J. Fianazzia, who applied to Judge Hasbrouck for an injunction restraining the Hiltbrand Company from maintaining the fence, and Judge Hasbrouck granted the injunction.

The Hiltbrand Company thereupon appealed to the appellate division, which on Wednesday unanimously affirmed Judge Hasbrouck's order with costs.

After Controversy.

In the matter of the Lake Hill Production and Development Company, a certificate has been filed at the office of the Ulster county clerk, whereby the original certificate of incorporation, which was issued to the company in 1914, is being amended so that the dividends on preferred stock be cumulative instead of non-cumulative.

HOSPITAL BUYS BRENN RESIDENCE FOR NURSES' HOME

The Sun Parlor in the City Hospital Will Be Turned Into a Maternity Ward, Making Another Nurses' Home Necessary—Took Possession Today.

The Kingston City Hospital has purchased the Brenn residence at No. 385 Broadway and will use the property as a nurses' home in conjunction with the home adjoining the institution. Possession of the property was taken today when the Brenns moved to their new home on Brewster street.

The hospital authorities have long felt the need of a maternity ward in the institution, and the big sun parlor is being turned into the maternity ward. This parlor was used to house some of the nurses as there was not room enough in the adjoining home. The work of turning the sun parlor into a maternity ward is now under way.

The Brenn residence will make an ideal home for the nurses and is located almost directly across the street. It is a two story frame house with cellar and attic.

TWO TRANSFORMERS BEING UNLOADED

Two big transformers are being unloaded from a flat car on the U. & E. Railroad in the rear of the Kingston Gas & Electric Light Company plant on Jansen avenue today. As related in The Freeman at the time, the trolley road contracted with the electric company to supply electric power to operate the cars in Kingston, but the trolley road has been operating with power supplied by its own power house on the Strand in Ponchockie as the freight delays on the railroad had tied up the delivery of the necessary machinery at the electric company's plant here. In order to carry out the contract with the trolley road the electric company found it necessary to install transformers and other electrical apparatus, and as soon as it is received and installed the trolley road will take its electric current from the Jansen avenue power plant.

A TALENTED YOUNG MUSICIAN

The piano forte recital given by Miss Melba Simmons on Wednesday evening at the music studio of her teacher, Arthur H. Snyder, on John street, was unusual in character in many ways, and proved that the youthful soloist is much more than ordinarily gifted as a musician. In addition to the numbers played by Melba there were several vocal selections, solos sung by Mrs. Glendinning and duets by Mr. and Mrs. Snyder, giving a pleasing variety to the program.

Melba opened the program with the "Gavotte in G minor" from the Third English Suite by Bach. It was a remarkably well played Bach number, memorized and played by a little girl of eleven years, which is saying a great deal.

Entirely different in character was the "Petit Bolero (Spanish Dance)" by Ravina, yet this too, Melba played with spirit and always with that delightfully musical quality of tone.

Haydn's "Gipsy Rondo," from the Trio in G major, with its rapidly running passages and its gay brilliancy, was enough to tax the memorizing powers of an experienced and mature musician. Yet the memorizing of the work seemed entirely incidental.

Other numbers admirably played from a technical viewpoint and also in interpretation of the melodic passages were the Schubert Impromptu in A Flat Major and an encore number, Chopin's "Humoresque."

The vocal numbers sung by Mrs. Glendinning, who has a very pleasing and musical soprano voice, well trained by Mr. Snyder, were "The Bird and the Rose," and one by our American women composers named Harrocks. This so delighted the audience that Mrs. Glendinning was good enough to sing as an encore "Heart Fancies" by Thomas. Two other very enjoyable numbers were "I Print you Heartaches" by Brannan and "Lullaby" by Clayton Johns.

There were three enthusiastically applauded duets sung by Mr. and Mrs. Snyder. "Evening" by Novali, "Serenade" by Schubert and "O That We Two Were Maying" by Neil Macer.

The last two numbers played by the little soloist of the evening were "Spinning Song" and "Bacchanale in G Minor" by Bachmann. Melba was asked for an encore number and played as her farewell at her first piano forte recital the Chopin Waltz in F Flat.

One of the charms of this gifted little girl is her genuine and ex-ecuting modesty.

Play at Accord.

There will be a play given by the Kingston City Hospital will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 11th, at 8 o'clock, as stated in Wednesday's Freeman.

LEGION HONORS LOCAL PRIEST

Father Mabry Appointed Chaplain of New York State Legion Men—Holy Cross Rector Has Distinguished Record—Honor For Kingston Post.

The Rev. Gregory Mabry, rector of Holy Cross parish, is receiving congratulations from all over New York state over his recent election as state chaplain, Department of New York, American Legion, by the executive committee of the department. There has been no chaplain of the department before. Only in the last state convention which met in Albany was the constitution so amended as to include the office of state chaplain, hence the election by the executive committee, which makes Father

THE REV. GREGORY MABRY.

Mabry the first chaplain of the legion in the state, an added honor, as New York furnished by far more clergy in the war than did any other state. The office carries with it a seat on the department executive committee. The Ulster county organization of the legion and Kingston Post, No. 150, feel that all the ex-servicemen in the county have been honored by the recognition that has come to a local man.

The industrious rector of Holy Cross came to Kingston last January immediately he had obtained his retirement from the army, in which he had been a regular. Among the first to go to France in 1917, he saw action quickly in the Toul sector, later at Mondidier, participating in the Soissons offensive, in which he was severely wounded. On returning to the lines early in September he was appointed division chaplain of the Sixth Division which then lay in Alsace. In the midst of the Argonne fight he was made a major of infantry, serving with the Fifty-fourth fantry, and going to Germany as such. He still retains his connection with the army as a major in the Reserve Corps. His citations tell of a brilliant military career.

Believing the American Legion destined to be a tremendous power for good in America he joined the Kingston Post, was quickly made its chaplain, represented the county at the state convention, and was sent to represent the state at the national convention at Cleveland. He possesses fervent patriotism, a level head, an Irish wit, and a ready tongue.

The new chaplain will speak tonight in Catskill at the Armistice celebration being held there, will make the memorial address next Sunday afternoon in the high school, and will lay the corner stone at the first state military hospital for disabled soldiers now being constructed at Creedmore.

GREAT WALL STREET EXPLOSION RESULT OF GRAFT IN BUILDING TRADES, INVESTIGATORS CLAIM

FARM BUREAU CAMPAIGN ON

Chester Young Launches Drive At Y. M. C. A. Wednesday Afternoon—Home Bureau Out For Members Also.

The membership campaign of the Farm Bureau and its "better half," the Home Bureau, was launched Wednesday afternoon at the joint meeting of the two bodies in the Y. M. C. A. The goal is 1,200 members.

The meeting got off to a good start after the big dinner with some good old time songs. They sang rounds, and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" and a host of other old timers. Pep was put into the singing by Farmer "Fat" Eppes who has had considerable experience in leading the Community Sings at Accord.

Chester A. Young, president of the Farm Bureau, presided, and launched the campaign with a strong appeal for hard work and more members. The dues in the Farm Bureau are $2 a year, and in the Home Bureau $1 a year. Mr. Young said that one of the state Farm Bureau officials was of the opinion that Ulster county should adopt a $5 a year dues and have a paid canvasser secure the new members. This official thought that a great many more members would be secured this way. Mr. Young said that he did not doubt that a great many members would be secured, for most farmers would cheerfully give $5 in order to get rid of a paid canvasser who might make a pest of himself. Such members, said Mr. Young, were not wanted by the Farm Bureaus. He said he would much rather keep the dues at $2 and have the spirit that now exists in the organization.

The chairman said that to many farmers the Farm Bureau had been worth more than $2 a year. For their benefit a place had been reserved on the membership ticket for them to subscribe more than the $2.

Mr. Young said that he had been asked by Mr. Chase, the Farm Bureau agent, to "sell" the Farm Bureau to them, but that this was not necessary, as the Farm Bureau had been sold some time ago. The Farm Bureau, said he, is an organization to keep the farmers together. They enjoy the social side, and get an idea of each other's wants and difficulties. A recent example of this was the aid given by the state Farm Bureau to the cyclone sufferers in Allegheny county. He also pointed out that the Farm Bureau afforded the farmers a place where they could seek information on various agricultural matters.

Mr. Young praised the work of Mr. Chase and Miss Stuart, the Home Bureau agent. They and the stenographers, are the only ones who receive compensation for the work they do, and they earn it. They put in long hours at hard work. Since May 1, Mr. Chase has made 12,000 miles in his Ford car doing work in the county. Other officials of the organization receive no pay. They do much work, and even pay their own traveling expenses.

In closing he urged the workers to work hard and put the campaign over Mr. Chase and Miss Stuart also spoke, appealing to the members to do their best. Mrs. Stuart announced that, as in previous years, a banner would be awarded to the town going the farthest over its quota. There will also be an honor roll.

F. E. Robertson, one of the leaders of the state body, spoke briefly on work being done in the state. He also spoke of the importance of Junior Project work for the children. Mr. Robertson said that many of the counties were increasing their dues to $5.

It was announced at the close of the meeting that the annual meeting of the Farm Bureau will be held on December 1 at one o'clock. The meeting will probably be held in this city. It is hoped that at that time to have present John R. Miller, the little big man in the Dairyman's League.

Evening World's Story Is That Oppression By Brindell and His ilk Caused Someone to Seek Revenge By Sending Bomb to Wall Street With Driver Ignorant of His Load.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 11.—The great Wall street explosion on September 16; which cost thirty lives and property damage of millions was not caused by anarchistic or "Red" activities, but was the direct result of a war between rival labor unions in New York, according to a sensational story published by the Evening World today, after an investigation of weeks.

"The building trades' graft was responsible for the crime," asserts the World.

The World said: "The Evening World herein presents proof that 1,800 men, nearly all foreign born, sober, industrious, efficient and well disciplined—Housewreckers Local Number 95, known recently as the 'Polish Union' and 'Zaranko's Union'—have within a space of eighteen months been subjected to an amazing conspiracy of greed and injustice and the explosion was the result of this tyranny. The building trades graft was responsible for the crime. The Evening World does not charge the union, as a union with responsibility. It was the work of individuals, possibly inside the union, possibly the work of sympathizers."

Further proofs are presented that the wrath and resentment of these working men and their fellows who knew of their tragic losing fight to avert vagrancy and starvation in days of overflowing labor opportunity was centered not only on their arch oppressor, Robert P. Brindell, dictator of the labor trades council, but also upon housewrecking contractors.

Robert P. Brindell, mentioned in the story, has been the central figure of an investigation by the Lockwood legislative committee, which has resulted in amazing disclosures of graft in the building trades industry in New York. Witnesses, both labor

HARDING MAKES ARMISTICE SPEECH

Pictureque Crowd of Border People With Mexicans Hoping To Hear Statement, Gathers At Brownsville To Hear Next President.

By Telegrams to The Freeman.

Brownsville, Texas, Nov. 11.—President-elect Warren G. Harding came out of his seclusion today, struggled with a stiff collar and a badly sunburned neck and paid his tribute to the fighting men of America at the armistice day celebration here.

Later this afternoon the president-elect will deliver his first formal speech he has made since his election.

Thousands swarmed into Brownsville to see and hear the next president.

Wealthy ranchers coming from the Rio Grande Valley in their high powered cars, cattlemen riding in on spirited mustangs, sheep herders trailing in on foot covered with alkali dust and hundreds of Mexicans coming in from all northern Mexico, some riding tiny burros and others chugging along in rattling automobiles and others on foot.

It was truly an international affair, that the president-elect attended today, for the crowds were of wide variety and picturesque indeed, with stalwart Americans of the border type and dusky Mexicans, tall, scarred in battle, silk bandannas of the most brilliant hue. In shy retirement among the mobs were many black-eyed Mexican women, wearing mantillas of shrieking colors and faces of their own make which were almost priceless.

Mexico is vitally interested in this event, for Mexican leaders hope the president-elect will make some statement which will indicate his probable future attitude toward Mexico.

Under a blazing Texas sun, the president-elect was to review a truly pictureque parade, with sprinkling of cavalrymen, Mexican Texas Rangers, and crested veterans of the civil war—all were remembered in the parade and greeted these men with the salute of the United States. These have fought and given their lives for America—the hero dead, which the president-elect paid tribute to today.

Governor Hootch, of Texas, was expected to arrive in time to hear the president-elect deliver his address on the parade grounds of the fort here late this afternoon, when the burning sun will be less intense. Senator Harding wrote the major portion of his speech in a high-crown coach station on the southern end of the Texas State, where he won his battles with the tariff. He was up early today and in his toilet took for a stroll over the grounds of the Brownsville Country Club, one of the clubs in heart of Texas dreams in the winter.

The senator found the country rather more sold than eastern country.

and contractors, have testified that Brindell was so powerful that he "shook down" both sides for huge sums.

Contractors testified that they had to pay Brindell large sums to be allowed to work. Failure to deal with Brindell, the said, resulted in his calling off the men and thus tying up work.

While Brindell was a "dictator" in the trades unions, the World sets forth, he had many enemies in labor ranks. Small unions hated him because they were forced to pay tribute to him.

It was the culmination of this hate against Brindell's organization, the World says, which resulted in the explosion. Desire for revenge was the compelling motive behind the crime.

On the day of the explosion, the Brindell organization was working on an excavation on Broad and Wall streets.

"The middle of September," continues the World, "at that time the feeling against the Brindell organization was at its bitterest. The smaller units in the industry appeal to the affiliated unions, to the American Federation of Labor and to fair play had failed. At that time A. Volk was carrying on the demolition of the buildings at the site of the Stock Exchange annex at Broad and Wall streets."

The World goes on to state that the bomb was carried to the scene of the explosion in a wagon driven by a "big stolid Pole," who did not know what was in his load. The Pole had been merely instructed to deliver his load to the "Job at Broad and Wall streets before 12 o'clock."

"In the wagon was a monster bomb of dynamite, about which broken pieces of cast iron each weighed had been packed. A clock work device to set off the bomb had been adjusted to do its work at 2 minutes after 12 o'clock. The dynamite had been stolen from the stores of wrecking and excavating contractors; the sack weights had been gathered from the junk pile of a building wrecker's yard."

ROSENDALE BRIDGE PARTIALLY CLOSED

Work on the Rosendale iron bridge was begun on Monday morning. A new floor is being laid and the work will probably be finished in about two weeks. Under the highway law this bridge could be closed until completed, but for the convenience of the public the superintendent of highways plans to keep the bridge open until 8 o'clock in the morning. It will then be closed until noon time when it will be open for a short time and then be closed again until 5 o'clock at night. It will then be left safe for the traffic to pass over during the night. Anyone having to pass over this bridge should plan to be there before it is closed and thus save themselves a long detour. This is the bridge situated in the village of Rosendale crossing the creek and connects Main street to the other part of the village which lies the other side of the creek.

VANDERLIP TELLS OF HUGE DEALS

Closes With Soviets for Purchase of Billion Dollars Worth of U. S. Goods—Has Rights to 400,000 Square Miles Held to Assure Syndicate Control of Oil Situation on Pacific.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Moscow, via Wireless to Berlin, Nov. 11.—The Soviet government of Russia has contracted to purchase $1,000,000,000 worth of merchandise in the United States in 1921 through the syndicate headed by Washington D. Vanderlip, a banker of Los Angeles, Cal. It was announced here by Mr. Vanderlip before his departure for a special train.

The American financier said he was well satisfied with the result of his negotiations with the Soviet government and this sentiment was echoed by Russian officials. The commercial order secured here for fulfillment in the United States is the biggest in the history of the world.

The correspondent of the International News Service met Mr. Vanderlip at the foreign office just after he had signed a contract for a long lease of Siberia and Kamchatka lands. The banker was smiling and happy over the success of his deal. He gave the International News Service the following signed statement:

"For the foreign press and the American people:

"It has been brought to my attention that our secretary of state, Bainbridge Colby, made a statement to the effect that I was in Moscow at the instigation of Senator (now president-elect) Harding negotiating for recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States. I came to Russia for the Vanderlip syndicate and for commercial purposes only.

"I have leased for the Vanderlip syndicate on terms of sixty years, 400,000 square miles of Russian territory rich in oil, coal and fish. This acquisition gives the United States control of the oil situation on the Pacific. I have also obtained an understanding whereby the Russian government will purchase in the United States during 1921 merchandise worth $1,000,000,000, offering in payment gold, platinum, furs, oil, oil products, manganese, copper, timber, pulpwood, hides, grain and other raw materials.

"Great quantities of these supplies are ready for immediate shipment to America. The commodities not needed in the United States will be distributed throughout European countries. In a few months the unsettled conditions in the far east, which have enabled Japan to secure almost a complete monopoly on trade, will be brought back to normal conditions and goods purchased in America will move freely from all Pacific coast ports over the Chinese Eastern railway and the Siberian railway as well as the Baltic seaports, the Murmansk ports and the Black Sea ports.

"The Vanderlip syndicate proposes to act as fiscal agents for the Russian Soviet government, immediately upon restoration of trade traffic and the abandonment of the British blockade. The Russian government is perfectly capable of carrying out any trade contracts between it and citizens of the United States, because it is to the interests of the Soviet government to develop economic relations, such as stipulated by this contract.

"The Russian government is the oldest in Europe today. Its history has not been changed in upwards of three years which is not true of any other first class European power. All parts of the United States will benefit from the restoration of trade relations from California to Maine; from Washington to Florida. Factories will expand and run at full time. Farmers, merchants and all classes of labor will share in the prosperity. If the majority of American people will no longer tolerate the chaotic conditions now prevalent in Europe they must seize this great opportunity to bring peace and reconstruction to the world. The keystone of these conditions is the reopening of trade relations between the United States and the Russian Soviet republic."

The following is a list of goods which Vanderlip said is to be purchased in the United States by the Russian government through the Vanderlip syndicate:

Small Savings Important. Small savings are the basis in a budget. They build a firm support to carry one over the head of an emergency.

HIGHLAND

Highland, Nov. 11.—Last Thursday Mrs. A. Schamerhorn, Mrs. Charles DuBois and Mrs. Lloyd Plase motored to Kingston and visited Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bradshaw.

Mrs. Deyo Atkins of New Paltz was a recent guest for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Atkins of this place.

George DuBois of New York was a recent guest of his parents here, Mr. and Mrs. Theron DuBois.

Frank L. Palmer was in Utica the past week on business and from there went to visit his daughter, Mrs. W. Davenport, at Watertown.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane Ackert of Poughkeepsie were guests of relatives here last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Palmer of New Jersey were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Palmer on Grand street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Taylor of Poughkeepsie were visitors in this place Sunday.

Robert Kurtz, who is in the navy and has been at Hampton Roads for some time, was the guest of his parents for a few days. He left here last Sunday evening for New York city to go again on duty.

Tuesday evening the O. E. S. held their regular meeting and conferred the Star Degrees upon one candidate. There was a good attendance and at the completion of the work refreshments were served and every person present was just delighted with the evening, both in work and the social following the work.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Wood are visiting friends in Monticello this week.

Mrs. Irving Rathgeb opened her home for the meeting of Music Study Class Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving C. Dayton of this place were guests recently of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Egan's family.

The Queen Esther Society will meet next Wednesday evening, the 17th, at the M. E. parsonage with the pastor's wife, Mrs. F. A. Coons, as hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cornell attended the funeral service of Mrs. Scowfield Knapp Monday afternoon at New Paltz. She was an aunt of Mr. Cornell. The funeral was largely attended and many beautiful floral emblems were sent by relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schamerhorn had as guests for the week end Mr. and Mrs. George Reissen of New York city.

The F. & A. M. held their regular meeting Monday evening.

Tuesday the taxpayers of this place held an election on the question of a new house house for the fire company, which is a very much needed affair in this place. Our firemen must have a place to meet and keep their hose cart and other necessary requisites and nothing is too good for the fire ladders who in time of need always come to the rescue to save people's buildings.

Miss Mattie Schantz was in Poughkeepsie Tuesday.

Mrs. F. L. Palmer left Wednesday morning for Watertown, where she will spend a week with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Davenport.

Mrs. James Nickerson was in Middletown last week visiting her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra G. Nickerson.

Mr. Connor of Grand street is improving slowly. Electrical treatment is being used and we are glad to say it is quite successful thus far.

Mrs. Millard Everett and children spent a few days in Kingston this week.

The Auxiliary Club last Friday was welcomed by Mrs. Eli Merritt, Mrs. Austin Merritt, Mrs. Arthur Merritt, Miss Mary Ida Merritt and Mrs. Ralph Lyons at the home of Mrs. Eli Merritt, where a large membership and invited guests were present. Mrs. F. Chudleigh was elected a member. This meeting was as all are very interesting. The Rev. F. A. Coons and wife conducted devotional exercises, then routine business was taken up to the entire satisfaction of all. The afternoon came to its close with a pleasing memory which grows more precious with passing days. A beautiful collection and social followed the work and the curtain was laid down on another epoch in auxiliary clubdom.

The D. A. of A. of this place, next Wednesday evening, will nominate officers and also initiate Mrs. George Hudson. There are a number of applications in for the appointment of investigating committees and balloting. Refreshments will be served by a committee and a fine time looked forward to. All members are requested to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rowley entertained friends from Poughkeepsie last week.

Miss Emily Miller has returned from Lake Mohawk, where she has been all summer.

Mrs. Myron Terpening and son, Percy, were visitors in Newburgh Sunday.

NEGRO ATTACKS MRS. GEO. SMITH

Former Saugerties Woman in Serious Condition at Bellevue Hospital—Assaulted With Prison Record Makes Escape.

As the result of an attack made upon her by an unknown negro last Thursday afternoon, Mrs. George Smith of 26 Jane street, New York city, is in Bellevue Hospital in a precarious condition. Mrs. Smith was formerly Miss Loretta Brink of Saugerties.

Mrs. Smith, who lives with her mother, Mrs. Harmon Brink, formerly of Saugerties, on the ground floor, was alone at the time with her infant baby, and the attack was a surprise. The negro had been on the top floor and came down the stairs to the Smith apartment. He battered down the door and immediately on gaining access demanded money from Mrs. Smith. She replied that she had none. The negro then said, "Well, I'll start with you then." As a result of his attack, Mrs. Smith sustained a fractured skull and broken nose, presumably inflicted by a blunt instrument. Her left ear was also slashed so badly that it was necessary to sew it together. The negro also stabbed her twice in the back and twice in the chest with a knife.

When Mrs. Smith was found her eyes were enlarged and her neck black and blue where her assailant had choked her.

After rifling the rooms and turning everything upside down, the negro made his escape. He managed to get away with a sum of money, jewelry and other articles.

Although seriously wounded, Mrs. Smith managed to crawl out of the window where her cries for help attracted the attention of neighbors who carried her into the house. She then became unconscious. The woman living on the top floor, whose apartment had been visited by the negro previously, immediately went to the Charles street police station and reported the crime. She described the assailant and it developed that his record was in the rogues' gallery, and that he had just finished serving a term in jail for a similar offense.

MALDEN REVIVAL.

Special Musical Program Friday Evening.

Matthew 22:22, "What Then Shall I Do With Jesus Which is Called the Christ?" was the text of the message of Tuesday evening's meeting of the Mair campaign, at Malden. A large delegation from Saugerties was present. The chorus choir of forty-five sang a beautiful selection, "His Love Is Far Better Than Gold" and Mrs. G. Zielman and Mrs. C. Cody sang a duet. The way for the sermon was paved by the convincing message Mr. Kaufman sang, "What Will You Do With Jesus?" Friday night the great booster chorus of fifty boys and girls will give a special program of interest in connection with the sermon. Saturday evening, "The Modern Dance," will be the subject of the evening message of the evangelist.

Wallkill Farms Sold.

The 100 acre farm of Walter Brown, near Wallkill, was sold this week to Mrs. G. E. Morrison of Brooklyn. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison will take immediate possession. The 7 acre property of Mrs. Flora Brill, located at Walden, with a fine 8 room house, was sold this week to Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Van Voorhis of Fishkill Village, who also are taking immediate possession. These sales were made through the Strout Farm Agency at Newburgh. The Newburgh branch office has sold 75 farms and several city properties recently. The Newburgh office is getting out a new booklet which advertises the city of Kingston as well as farms in Ulster.

Tragedy at Ball.

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 11.—While hundreds of guests were dancing the last waltz at the "Victory Ball" of the American Legion posts here early today, Arthur Proulx, 21 year old hero of the world war, was shot and killed a short distance away by Andrew Rheame, also an ex-service man.

New Athens Ferry.

Charles Whitbeck, the general manager of the Hudson and Athens Ferry Company, announces that a new and modern ferryboat will be placed on the Hudson and Athens route next year. Contracts have been closed for the building of the boat, which, when completed, will replace the "George H. Power," a craft that has seen many years of service.

Troop & Boy Scouts.

Troop 5 of the Boy Scouts will hold its regular meeting Friday evening at 7:15 o'clock. There will be a special program and the rewards earned during the month will be presented. Horner, elder manufacturers, 23 All Scouts are urged to be present.

Dr. Ethel Rice

Dr. Ethel Rice, prominent Chicago woman physician, who was arrested while dressed in male attire when she tried to gain entrance to a lecture "for men only" at the Woods Theater, Chicago. The straw hat she wore attracted much attention and Dr. Rice, male attire and all, was taken in by the police.

METTACHAHONTS.

Mettachahonts, Nov. 11.—Miss Annie Hornbeck, who is attending the Ellenville High School, spent the past week end at her home in this place. Miss Minerva Miller, who has been home for several days with a sore throat, returned to her position in the knife works at Ellenville on Thursday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bell and son, Clifford, were in town visiting relatives on Saturday afternoon.

We are glad to see Mrs. Chester Wood and Miss Lulu M. Osterhout home again from their past season at Lake Mohonk. Mr. and Mrs. Wood will leave shortly for the sunny southland.

Mrs. Hannah M. Burger left Sunday to visit relatives at Kingston and Lake Katrine. Virgil Wood, Otis Miller, John Vandemark, Jesse Osterhout, and Elmer B. Hendrickson motored to Dairyland on Tuesday in Mr. Wood's car and returned with a car load of game.

Treasurer John Burger of Pataunkunk was in town Thursday looking for delinquent scholars again.

Mrs. Maria J. Osterhout, who had the misfortune to fall recently, is slowly improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Volk of Poughkeepsie, visited Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kelder and family over a week end recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Osterhout called on her brother, William Rider, on Sunday afternoon at Whitfield. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kelder and sons, Robert and Franklin, visited Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kelder on Sunday.

Mrs. Cornelius Irving has returned to her Poughkeepsie home after spending a couple weeks with her grandmother, Mrs. Melissa Krom.

There seems to be an abundance of cider apples and cider this fall. Threshing was done at Benjamin Rider's on Monday and Tuesday by Oscar Markle and helper, Preston Enderly, with Mr. Markle's threshing outfit.

Tracy Baker and Virgil Wood motored to the vicinity of Mountaintide on Wednesday on a hunting trip and had good success, returning well laden.

Oscar Markle and Jacob Krom were in Kingston last Saturday with a load of Mr. Krom's farm produce.

Abraham Bedesky is making large improvements to his barn.

E. B. Hendrickson has been painting for A. Van Etten and Derooy Baker. Mr. Van Etten's house is looking fine from its new coat of paint.

John Vandemark has been having his Dodge car overhauled at his brother's garage at Kripplushush.

Arthur Wood enjoyed supper at Jesse Osterhout's Saturday evening. We are glad to see him about place the "George H. Power," a craft that has seen many years of service.

Secures Position.

William N. Stafford, an honor graduate of Spencer's Business School, Inc., has secured an excellent position as bookkeeper and clerical assistant with G. W. Van Slyke & Co. Catalog Kanage will be presented. Horner, elder manufacturers, 23 All Scouts are urged to be present.

RETAINS SHOES AND SOCKS.

But Best of His Clothing Was Jerked Into Older From.

Cider from the mill of Selah Evans at Ellenville, Orange county, may have a peculiar taste, but Mr. Evans cares less about the taste of what customers may say about it than he does for various articles of clothing which went in the cider mill at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon. When he was bent to finish his day's work by throwing off the machine belt, he carelessly placed his foot against it.

Part of his clothing caught in the set screw of the pulley wheel, twisting it the times a minute, and before he could escape, his clothing was torn from his body and drawn in to the roller, throwing him heavily to the floor but leaving him with his shoes and socks still on his feet. With these, he had to crawl out of the mill, and he was unable to get away without difficulty, except such as might be experienced by anyone who received similar injury. He is reported as feeling comfortably at his home. The effect of the clothing on the cider has not been determined.

FARM BUREAU MANAGER'S REPORT

And Other Matters at Morning Session of Advisory Council Wednesday—State Department Suggestions.

On the roll call of communities by Manager Chase at the Farm and Home Bureau advisory committee meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday morning, the following were found to be represented:

Accord, Asbury, Clintondale, Gardiner, Hurley, Kerhonkson, Lake Katrine, Marlborough, Milton, Modena, New Paltz, Stone Ridge, Tongsore, Ulster Park, Walkkill, Woodstock. Total, sixteen communities out of thirty in the county. Twenty-two communities have been organized and eight are yet to be organized.

Manager Chase's Report.

Manager Chase of the Farm Bureau made an informal but detailed report of work of the past year.

Large tests had been conducted at four farms, and showed an increase of one-quarter of a ton in hay to the acre where lime was used.

Eusilage corn tests were conducted with six varieties. Cornell No. 12 was shown to be best and Golden Glow the poorest. The test for best variety showed 16 tons per acre green weight, and the poorest variety showed eleven tons. In dry matter, Cornell No. 12 won the test by one-half ton. While these figures might be correct for this year, the best plan is to carry on tests for a number of years, with all kinds of seasons, to determine the best standardized variety.

In corn husking, it was found the early Dent corns were best, the best variety being "Early Huron." The poorest variety was the "Eight Row Flint." "Early Huron" showed 58 bushels to the acre and "Eight Row Flint" showed 51 bushels.

Fertilizer tests were made. Thousands of tons of low-nitrogen fertilizers are used in Ulster county. The best test was on wheat. A field was divided in two equal parts. One part received 200 pounds of acid phosphate to the acre, costing $29.60 per ton, and yielded 28 bushels per acre. The part not fertilized produced 21 bushels to the acre. The increase of seven bushels cost $2.96, or about 40 cents per bushel.

Another field was divided in three equal parts. One part was not manured and produced 52 bushels of corn; the second section received 370 pounds of 2-10 fertilizer which cost $9.77 and produced 61 bushels; the third section was fertilized with acid phosphate at a cost of $5.55 and produced 80 bushels. In another year such figures might vary and might not hold true, which made it necessary to conduct tests for several years.

The Farm Bureau had conducted a spray service, with the cooperation of growers. It had been impossible to get one man who would agree to remain which made it necessary for all the fruit growers to cooperate, and the result had been satisfactory.

The market news service had been conducted for fruit growers and weekly market reports were sent out. This service was sent out to 250 members of the Farm Bureau, each of whom had asked that it be continued. This service was a report of actual sales weekly in 55 counties, and the cost for each member who received it was about $1.50 for the season.

Cooperative marketing had been taken up by the bureau which had helped to organize the Esopus Central Fruit Growers' Association at Ulster Park.

Ten poultry culling demonstrations had been held and members had agreed to cull poultry, aggregating 27,000 birds.

The bureau had sold $8,700 worth of supplies for the Grange League Federation; in the Rondout valley it had tried to help raise money for the cooperative creamery, and throughout the county it had tried to organize communities, with local committees, and it had made men feel that the county Farm Bureau organization was intended to help them but that it could do much or little, just as the men of each community helped it. The work had been conducted with the view of "getting somewhere."

State Department Suggestions.

Prof. Montgomery Robinson of the Cornell School of Agriculture at Cornell University, Ithaca, was the next speaker and complimented Ulster county. As he had become acquainted with the county, it seemed to him the work had been directed toward the county needs. A community program, which had been adopted this year, had the advantage of meeting community needs but it had the disadvantage of being too miscellaneous, demanding the attention of the county agent in matters which were not county-wide in application. There was a third plan, which was to get all the interests in each branch of agriculture, such as fruit, dairying, etc., together and have each make a program for the county. The advantage of the third plan was that it offers opportunity for a permanent program.

The college at Ithaca, he said, had a speaker call for experts, than it could supply, and as New York state had more specialists than any other, it was not likely they would be increased, and for this year there must be a special program where experts are sent out. The work of the expert must be followed up, and unless it is, farmers could not tell whether tests were a success. In some counties the farmers were putting on five-year tests in dairying, it would be appropriate to set a definite goal, such as to rid the county of tuberculosis in cattle. Dairymaking is a thing to look forward to.

Another thing to consider whether the program is well balanced and whether all resources, including the help of Cornell from Washington and Ithaca, are being used to the best advantage.

bees as well as cattle; crops; disease enemies and economic and social aspects of the farm.

In conducting schools, there would be three-day and five-day schools. Of the three-day schools, there is a new type, the farm shop school. There was an increasing demand on the part of farmers to have someone help them in simple things, such as filling a saw or cleaning and mending harness, soldering, and other simple operations which often went undone for lack of a little instruction. It was intended to hold as many as possible of these schools this winter. It was his department's function to help in marketing as well as production, the goal being the same as that of the Farm Bureau—profitable production.

In Ulster county, six communities had applied for three-day schools and five communities had applied for five-day schools. A staff of fifty instructors sounded big, but when this staff was spread over the entire state, it did not go far. Consequently, the department could not furnish an unlimited number of schools.

Ulster county had applied for five Farmers' Institutes. There probably would not be any limit on them. Personally he did not see much difference between Farmers' Institutes and Community Meetings, except that the program was arranged by different people and the institutes had a broader range.

Spray Service Enlarged.

The spray service was explained by Manager Chase, who said there could not be any definite time set for spraying, which depended on many things. The proposition now presented was to put in a man to study the fruit bugs, diseases, etc., and to put communities in different zones. This would necessitate a relay telephone service, so that when the time in any zone was found right for spraying, every Farm Bureau member in that zone could be notified by telephone. The cost of financing this plan would be a minimum fee of $5, up to 25 acres of fruit, with an additional $1 for each ten acres and a maximum fee of $10. There must be either a good man to handle this or none at all. Pruning would be put on a five-year demonstration.

The proposed program was placed on the blackboard, and was discussed in detail. In regard to out variety tests, Mr. Chase said that in growing oats in Ulster county, there probably were not two kinds alike. One farmer at Hurley who had had great success had used the same variety for twelve years. Standardization of feed is not as foolish as it looks at first. There were nineteen kinds of dairy feeds being handled in one section, containing twelve ingredients. It was planned to get men in each community to limit the number to eight or ten, because shifting back and forth always checked production. The first step must be organization, with a committee in each community.

Prof. Robinson said the program proposed was excellent. There were some things which ought to be added, but it was impossible to do everything in one day, and time must be provided for emergency work, which was bound to arise. It was better to have a small program and accomplish it than to have a big program and accomplish little.

Manager Chase spoke of the eight fruit organizations in the Hudson valley and three in Ulster county. The time was coming when the eight would want to get together and fruit men ought to give some thought to this subject, although he did not believe it should be part of the program for the year's work of the Bureau.

A Cow Testing Association.

Dairymen from various parts of the county discussed the desirability of undertaking a Cow Testing Association and the necessity of improving the breed of cattle, there being practically no breeding in Ulster county now.

Prof. Robinson said that in Cortland county pure bred calves were sold for real and suggested that it might be a paying proposition to buy them. Several dairymen said the breeds were better in the Walkkill valley than in the Rondout valley and elsewhere, and suggested that a committee be appointed by the breeders by themselves to cooperate for the sale and purchase of pure bred calves.

A number of dairymen suggested the appointment of a committee to consider the matter of a cow testing association, and President Young appointed a committee of dairymen from the different communities, the members being suggested by the committeemen present, as follows: Daniel E. Schoonmaker, Accord; John Addis, Kerhonkson; E. B. Ellis, Stone Ridge; Augustus Elmendorf, Hurley; Lester B. Davis, Tongsore; P. M. Sullivan, New Paltz; Clarence L. Schoonmaker, Gardiner; P. H. Decker, Walkkill; Edward Morris, Modena.

The committee adjourned for dinner, after adopting the program for the coming year's work.

SAGVERTIES BASKETBALL.

Athletic Association Team to Meet Irish-Americans in Opening Game.

The Sagverties Athletic Association has organized a basketball team and will start the home season on Monday evening, November 15. Games will be played every Monday night throughout the season and the management is going to book only the best attractions from the capital district and along the river. The fast Irish-Americans of Hudson will be the attraction for the opening game and this should be a "bunderer" for they are out to avenge last year's defeat. Manager Keville, has signed, "Hackey" Smith and George. They, one of the speediest men in this section and "Whiskey" Peters, who can drop them in from all angles, to play the forwards. "Nicker" Keville will be at the short position and he moves fast to make his argument work to prevent him from scoring. Harold Robinson, one of the best strikers in the Hudson valley, and Stan Stride will hold down the defensive end. The big team will start at 8:00 and draw a full house.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Pressman.
New York, Nov. 11.—The action of the stock market at the opening today was significant of lasting change in conditions. It had been expected because of the hurried advances late yesterday that a reaction would be in order, at the beginning of business today, but instead many stocks were in still more urgent demand and higher prices were reached in many cases. The feature of the opening was the Southern Pacific which sold at from 114 to 114 1/2, compared with 112 1/2 at the close yesterday. Reading made a gain of 3/4 to 96 1/2 and fractional gains were made in several other of the railroad stocks. United Fruit rose 3/4 to 209. Atlantic Gulf advanced 2 1/2 to 125 1/2. United States Steel ranged from 33 1/2 to 34. Mexican Petroleum moved up 2 points to 172 and Pan American Petroleum made a gain of 1/2 to 79 1/2. Shell Transport sold at 2 1/2 to 48. Seneca Copper advanced to 22 1/2.

The market closed irregular; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

The commandery was honored by the presence of Right Eminent Sir Frederick Sim, past grand commander of the state of New York, Eminent Sir George O. Linkletter, grand junior warden of the state, Eminent Sir J. Wellington Boyle, U. I. C., No. 3, Joseph Overly, Bradford, Pa., Eminent Sir Fred G. Chandler, Samuel Brown, Harry V. Barnum, Howard R. Patton, Elmer E. Rogers, Howard R. Patton, William F. Miller of Hudson River Commandery, No. 35, and C. A. Parades of Fall River, Mass. One of the most stirring addresses on Knight Templar work was delivered by Sir Eminent J. Wellington Boyle of Saugerties, who is widely known as an after dinner speaker. He held the close attention of his hearers, and gave much of historical interest to the old and new "fraternal" present.

TO RANDALL'S ISLAND

Edward Schuyler Sent There Today by Judge Schirck.

Edward Schuyler, 16 years old, of No. 42 St. James street, was committed to Randall's Island until discharged by law this morning by Judge Schirck. The youth was arrested early this morning by Night Watchman D. J. Leehy, who found him sleeping under the concrete steps on the Pine Grove avenue side of the Y. M. C. A. The officer in his report of the arrest said that the youth had been sleeping there for two nights. The boy had been committed before Judge Schirck several times before and the last time he promised to keep off the streets and stay at home.

Captain A. R. Mills, commodore of the American Legion, has retired after fifty-two years of service on the high seas. The photo was taken when the captain sailed on the steamship Olympia to settle for life in his old home in Southampton. This marks the completion of Captain Mills' 1-068th trip across the Atlantic. During his fifty-two years at sea he has traveled more than 4,600,000 miles.

Bird Outruns Horse.

Anyone who has traveled through Western Texas becomes familiar with the mesquite tree, or, as it is sometimes known, a shrub. In some places where it may grow to be thirty or forty feet high, it is commonly known as the chaparral, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington. Here it is scrubby and masses into dense clumps, it being the home of that famous bird the "road-runner" or chaparral cock, and other interesting species. It is a form of bird, ground chicken, that only takes to flight when hard pressed; while on open ground it can run so fast that an ordinary horse cannot keep up.

Disillusioned.

Waiting for his shoes in a white-out repair shop, he was impressed by the apparent femininity, neatness and self-respect of the young woman attending the counter. He didn't like to see her handling worn shoes. He was wishing she were in another environment. Just then his shoes were passed along from the workman to her. She took them, looked at the tag, called a boy and pointing to the mending customer, said:

Custom of Wearing Shirts

The custom of wearing shirts and slacks, was known by the most primitive races and was certainly worn by the ancient Egyptians. The Egyptians wore shirts, often with sleeves, to protect the body and call of the day.

KOSCIUSKO POST, THE STRANGEST AND MOST ADVENTUROUS

Born in a box-car on the way to the battlefields of Poland last fall, and with its membership today sadly depleted by casualties, Kosciusko post of the American Legion, formed out of the famous Kosciusko squadron, is regarded as the strangest and most adventurous of the 9,000 units of the veterans' organization.

In the fighting about Warsaw when the fate of the Polish capital hung in doubt the Legionnaires of the Kosciusko squadron were battling night and day against the advancing waves of the bolsheviks. When the tide of battle turned and the reds retreated the machine gun fire from the planes of the Americans went far to turn their retreat into a rout.

The men of Kosciusko post are hardened veterans. A year ago they signed up for service with the Polish army after they had flown battle planes in many engagements against the Germans in the World war. Sent out on active service shortly after their squadron was formed these adventurers fought on every front in Poland and many times were cited for their daring in action.

The charter members of Kosciusko post were: Capt. Merlan C. Cooper of Jacksonville, Fla., who has been reported missing; Capt. A. H. Kelly, Richmond, Va.; Capt. Edward Korst, Brooklyn; Lieut. G. M. Crawford, Wilmington, Del.; Lieut. Kenneth O. Shrewsbury, Charleston, W. Va.; Lieut. Carl Clark, Tulsa, Okla.; Lieut. Edwin Noble, Boston, Mass.; Lieut. E. W. Chess, El Paso, Tex.; and Lieut. E. P. Graves, Boston, Mass., who has been killed. The squadron was formed under the command of Maj. C. E. Fauntleroy of Chicago. Joe Stehlin of Sheepshead Bay, L. I., who served two years with the French aviation service and won many decorations, joined the Kosciusko squadron as a captain after the post had been organized.

"Tell 'em, if folks ever get discontented with things back home, they ought to have a look at central Europe," was the message that came from Captain Cooper when the post was formed, "and then thank God for America and put their backs into the fight to keep America sane."

HONOR TO CENTRALIA DEAD

National Commander and Party Visit Graves of Legion Men Killed During City Parade.

The head of the American Legion journeyed all the way to Centralia, Wash., to pay homage at the graves of the four men who were slain by members of the I. W. W. last Armistice day. Two hundred Legion men and women accompanied Franklin D'Olier, their national commander, on his visit to the scene of the tragedy, and stood with bowed heads in Mountain View cemetery as he pledged the Legion to everlasting reverence to the memory of its martyred members.

There was nothing of rancor in D'Olier's reference to the men who killed the peaceful paraders. But the speech served warning as hundreds of other incidents of Legion history of the last year have served warning, that the Legion is a wall of steel against all advocates of violence, whether they dub themselves "volunteers" or parlor bolsheviks.

"I come here as to the shrine of the American Legion," said D'Olier, standing at the foot of the grave of Warren Grimm, killed at the head of the Armistice day parade. "Centralia will mean to the Legion what Bunker Hill, Gettysburg and Chateau Thierry mean to the nation. At these places, the spirit of America met the enemy and triumphed. Here, in Centralia, the spirit of the American Legion likewise met the enemy of our country and triumphed."

As representative of the nearly two million members of the Legion, D'Olier laid a wreath of flowers on Grimm's grave. In the crowd were Grimm's old friends in Centralia and friends of Dale Hubbard, Ben Casaranda and Arthur McElfresh, who also were slain. "It is fitting that here today we should renew our pledge of patriotism and devotion to law and order and serve notice on the forces of anarchy that more than four million ex-servicemen, who fought and defeated the foe without, are now sworn to fight to the death the foe within, who would work injury to our sacred institutions. Our legislation shall be our shields and the restraint shown by their outraged comrades. By dedicating ourselves to the defense of our flag and all that it means, a defense based on fairness and justice, we shall prove that our comrades in France and Centralia have not died in vain," the commander concluded.

Aid From Stage Players.

The helpful camaraderie of the theatrical profession was strikingly emphasized at the "Legion" for the service men of Anderson county, S. C., staged under the auspices of W. A. Hudderson and the members of the Anderson county and Marion. A professional road company, which had just closed its management at a local theater, volunteered to put on a quadruple bill which was with hearty approval.

PORTER KNEW HIS BUSINESS

Thoughtfulness That Should be Common Gratitude, Have Earned Him a Liberal Tip.

The happy couple were on their way to Scotland. They had to change trains at Carlisle, and an oblique porter, while struggling with their luggage, made mental note of the fact that the young woman's hair was dotted with rice.

Presently he approached the glad young man and pulling a folded paper from his pocket, said:

"Here's a present for you, sir, with the company's compliments."

"Indeed?" said the traveler. "What is it?"

"A railway map, sir."

"Oh, thank you, and what are these marks in blue pencil?"

"There's the beauty of it, sir," said the smiling porter; "those marks show just where the tunnels are, and their length."

That porter knew a thing or two.

HAS NO FEAR OF SHARKS

Writer Tells of Curious Fish Which the Monsters of the Deep Leave Severely Alone.

There is one fish that has no fear of sharks. This fish inhabits the waters of the South Sea Isles. Frederick O'Brien tells in his book, "White Shadows in the South Seas," of having seen thousands of these fish living peacefully in a cove fairly alive with man-eating sharks.

"This fish, the Diodon antennatus," Mr. O'Brien writes, "gets the better of the shark in a curious manner. He can blow himself up by taking in air and water, until he becomes a bloated wreck instead of the fairly decent thing he is in his normal moments. He can bite, he can make a noise with his jaws, and he can eject water from his mouth to some distance."

Besides all this, he erects papillae on his skin like thorns, and secretes in the skin of his belly a carmine fluid that makes a permanent stain.

Despite all these defenses, if the shark is fool enough to heed no warning, and to eat Diodon, the latter puffs himself up, and eats his way through the shark to liberty, leaving the shark riddled and leaky, and, in deed, dead.

The writer says that should this still be doubted, he refers his readers to Charles Darwin.

Family Lives in Bottle.

There is a bottle in use at Pine Island Lake, N. H., which houses an entire family. The bottle, made of wood, stands 35 feet in height and is 10 feet in diameter. It was constructed to advertise a widely known beverage, but housing conditions were so difficult and the cost of building construction so high that Louis F. Messer bought it and had it removed to the lake, where it was re-erected and an addition built for use as a combination living room and kitchen, leaving the rest of the "bottle residence" free for the family and their guests.

The first floor of the bottle is used as a dining room, while the second and third floors are sleeping rooms, reached by means of ship ladders. All the rooms are comfortably furnished. Electric light has been installed, together with telephone service and other accessories.

Cow Was Sightseeing.

A cow from the country wandered into Keene, N. H., sauntered along the sidewalk, stopped to look in at several windows, first of the telephone office, next at Ferris's store, and then of the ice cream parlors, paused for a time to examine the sample photographs in front of a studio, and then started up the studio stairs. Half way up the cow decided not to go farther, and without room enough to turn around made a rapid descent backward, doing a quickstep in order to keep upright. The town

BRITAIN HONORS SOLDIER DEAD

Chief Feature of Armistice Celebration Is Impressive Burial of "An Unknown Warrior" in Westminster Abbey—King George and High Officers at Ceremony.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Nov. 11.—Amidst Britain's most illustrious dead, an unknown soldier was buried in Westminster Abbey today, alongside the graves of kings and field marshals. The simple epitaph "an unknown warrior" is the only eulogy upon the granite above the grave but the burial called forth such solemn and impressive pomp as might have been paid the memory of the greatest soldier of the empire.

The burial ceremony took place immediately after the unveiling of the cenotaph—a great memorial shaft erected in central London to the memory of the British empire's war dead—and was the chief feature of the armistice day celebration. King George united with the nation's foremost statesmen and soldiers in paying homage to the unknown hero who was killed in action on the fields of Flanders.

It was a fine spirit of sentiment which inspired the British government thus to remember its debt to the humble and obscure men of the ranks who gave their lives for their country in the great war. The body of "the unknown warrior" was picked up on the historic battlefield of Ypres, where the British stemmed and held the Germans in their rush to the north coast of France.

Under instructions from the cabinet, the military authorities searched for the body of a man who died fighting in the early days of the war. His identity and his regiment were unknown. He had been hastily buried, probably at night and most likely under heavy shell fire on the very fringe of battle. When the military mission set out to find "the unknown warrior" to be honored by the mighty British empire they were under no special restrictions as to the branch of service he fought in. He might have been an infantry man or an artillery man or an aviator. But he was a fighting man and he died on the firing line.

A simple, plain oak coffin was sent to France and the body was sent home on a warship. Senior officers of the three fighting services—admirals of the fleet, field marshals and air marshals—were selected to be pall bearers.

Just before the cenotaph was unveiled by King George, a gun carriage drawn by three powerful artillery horses, halted north of the cenotaph.

Throughout the whole morning crowds had been gathering about the cenotaph and by 10 o'clock a vast multitude filled all the streets. The streets leading to Westminster Abbey were a solid mass of humanity. The roof tops were crowded. Every window was filled. High above the buildings the Union Jack floated at half mast.

The ceremonies at the cenotaph took place just at 11 o'clock, the hour at which firing ceased along the western battle front on November 11, 1918. As the great clocks in the towers of the churches boomed out the hour, a deep and solemn silence fell, not only upon the multitude in the streets, but throughout the whole city. Work and business activity was stilled throughout the whole nation.

After two minutes of stillness, the "last post" rang out from a score or more of massed bugles.

The funeral procession was then formed and the gun carriage with the coffin was drawn past the cenotaph. King George symbolizing the chief mourner of the empire followed the funeral procession to Westminster Abbey on foot.

When the service was finished, reveille was sounded, and as the body was being lowered into the grave a field marshal's salute of guns was fired in the Horse Guards' Parade.

The funeral procession entered the Abbey through the north door, passing through the State on the west end where the grave had been selected. The mighty cathedral was jammed with people representative of every walk in life. In addition to the king and other members of the royal family there were members of the cabinet and parliament, representatives of the diplomatic corps and special reservations had been made for wounded soldiers and nurses who served at the front.

Three Births.

CITY TO BORROW; NO SPECIAL TAX

No special tax levy will be imposed on the city under the resolution adopted by the common council Tuesday night by which $50,000 will be made available for the city treasury. Instead, the city will borrow that sum by the sale of promissory notes or bonds which will become payable not later than March 1st next, in anticipation of the next tax levy.

The necessity of replenishing the city treasury at this time is due to the falling off in the amount received from the state for the city's share of the income tax imposed by the state which is far below the amount which the comptroller estimated for the city, and the fact that the city's share of the tax on bank shares will not be received by the city until January, while the city must carry on its business and pay its bills regularly up to the time the bank share tax is received.

Comptroller Travis's estimate of the amount which would be raised by the state in the way of income taxes was about $60,000,000, and his estimate of the amount which Kingston city would receive this year as its share of such taxes was about $48,000. The total amount received by the state from income taxes was about $35,000,000 and the amount which the city of Kingston has received of such taxes amounts to about $22,000, instead of the estimated $48,000 which had been included in the city budget for this year. The bank share tax amounts to about $16,000.

When the state income tax law went into effect, it was estimated by the state comptroller that the total amount to be received in such taxes would exceed the amount which previously had been received from excise taxes. Excise taxes practically went out of existence with the passage of the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution and the Volstead enforcement act. The state income tax law was passed in order to provide the revenue which the excise tax formerly had supplied.

Kingston City's share of excise tax money steadily increased from year to year until the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act became effective. In 1919 the excise money fell off because licenses were not being taken out by men whose business became extinguished by the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act.

The amounts received by the city of Kingston as the city's share of state excise taxes for several years was as follows:

1916, about $25,000.
1917, about $29,000.
1918, about $41,000.
1919, about $12,500.

The amount received by the city from the state income tax for 1920 is, as stated, about $22,000, or $26,000 less than the amount which the comptroller estimated the city would receive. In making up the city budget for 1920, the common council accepted the comptroller's estimate of receipts from this source.

The city department's must continue to run, and the city's bills must continue to be paid, until the next tax levy becomes available. In February, and because of that fact and the falling off in receipts from outside sources and the fact that the bank tax is not payable until January, the necessity for the resolution to borrow $50,000 in anticipation of the next tax levy becomes apparent. Such borrowing has been common in the past.

CONDENSED CLASSICS

THE THREE MUSKETEERS

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

Condensation by
Capt. Andre Morize

Throughout his life, Alexandre Dumas had all the freedom of responsibility of a fiction writer. He did not indulge in reveries about the past or dreams of the future. He lived spectacularly in the present.

His headstrongness was most emphasized at his paternal home, Monte Cristo, where his love for splendor and his prodigality plunged him into debt. Most of his visitors, who came ostensibly for an hour and remained for days, were penniless men and women, who were glad enough to find a place where they could live luxuriously for nothing.

Many of these thrifless folk made Monte Cristo their home. Dumas had not the heart to turn them away; he even invented tasks for them which would not be unhappy about staying. One homeless wanderer who had a sense of shame was appeased by being told to note down each day what the thermometer registered. "It is most important for me to be well informed on this point," Dumas assured him.

Worst of all were the actresses. A succession of them came and went, each raising the house while she remained and leaving all her friends to revel with her. Sometimes Dumas, in despair over his debts, went away, but the hangers-on remained, charging food and wine to Dumas' account at a nearby hotel.

"ALL for one; and one for all!"

This was the oath of the four comrades: of d'Artagnan, the young guardsman, and of Athos, Porthos and Aramis, the Three Musketeers.

Only three months had d'Artagnan been in Paris, yet already he was the chosen companion of the noblest three in M. de Treville's picked company of musketeers, in the service of Louis XIII. A true Gascon, fiercely proud, ready to fight at a word, the eighteen-year-old provincial had won the respect of the glorious three by challenging them, and their friendship by helping them to drive off the cardinal's guards who would have arrested them for dueling. Indeed, this latter exploit had won for d'Artagnan more than a glance from the king himself, who was not displeased to see Richelieu's men worried by his own.

At Meung, even before reaching Paris, d'Artagnan had had an honorable encounter, his adversary being a tall, commanding stranger of olive complexion and scarred on the cheek. A beautiful woman had accompanied this man. Both their faces were stamped on d'Artagnan's memory.

Before he could be admitted to the musketeers, d'Artagnan was to serve probation as a guardsman; but already he was a musketeer in spirit and his comrades longed as keenly as he for the day when he would be allowed to join their company. Athos, Porthos and Aramis were alike only in soldierly qualities. Athos was of noble bearing, and when he was drunk, he would talk of a secret sorrow; Porthos was a great lover of ladies, and declared that his conquests would bring him his downfall; Aramis, who had friends in the church and a sweetheart at court, pretended that he was only temporarily a musketeer, and would willingly change his plumed hat for a monk's cow when the time came.

One day d'Artagnan's landlord, Bonacieux, burst into the room with news that Madame Bonacieux, a pretty seamstress in the service of the queen, had just been abducted. From the landlord's description d'Artagnan recognized the abductor as his man of Meung, and was anxious to help. The more so when he learned that the object of the abduction was to force the lady to tell what she knew of the love affair between the queen and George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, who was coming secretly to Paris.

It was in their resolve to protect Madame Bonacieux, for whom the impressionable d'Artagnan had suddenly conceived an undying affection, that the four comrades came together in their oath.

"Remember," said Aramis, "henceforth we are at issue with the Cardinal." Aided by d'Artagnan, who fought off the Cardinal's officers, the lady contrived to escape. He declared his love for her, but she would promise nothing. Next time he saw her she was conducting the Duke of Buckingham, disguised as a musketeer, toward the royal palace. If d'Artagnan had followed he would have learned that the queen did indeed love Buckingham, but was loyal to the king. As a token she gave Buckingham twelve diamond studs the king had given her.

A spy reported this to Richelieu, who saw in it an opportunity to attack the king, the queen and the duke all at once. First Richelieu asked the king to give a bullet for the queen and to ask her to wear the diamond studs, and then he sent a message to Lady de Winter in London, telling her to steal two of the studs from Buckingham. Learning of this plot through Madame Bonacieux, d'Artagnan resolved to serve both his lady and his queen by recovering the jewels. For London the four comrades set out. Begged by the Cardinal's men on the road, three were wounded, and only d'Artagnan reached London. There was just time to replace the stolen studs and return to Paris, which d'Artagnan reached on the night of the ballet, foiling Richelieu's plot.

He now set out to find his comrades. Porthos he found in bed at an inn. Aramis disputing with doctors of theology, and Athos drunk in a wine cellar, airing his secret sorrow and defying the landlord to eject him. In his youth, Athos confessed, he had been tricked into marriage with a beautiful friend, who he later discovered, carried on her shoulder the executioner's brand, the fleur de lys. Horror-stricken, he had slain her.

In church next day d'Artagnan's eye was caught by a very beautiful lady whom he recognized as the one who had been with the stranger at Meung. Following her from the church, he saw her talking with an Englishman, and drawing close he heard her call this man her brother-in-law, Lord de Winter.

d'Artagnan fell deeply in love with Lady de Winter, but his ardor cooled when he learned that she was a cardinalist plotter. By a trick he obtained from her a sapphire ring, which he showed to Athos.

"Where did you get this?" cried Athos. "It was my mother's."

d'Artagnan told him. "Renounce that woman," said Athos. "She is a fatal creature."

That night d'Artagnan accused Lady de Winter of treachery. She rushed upon him and in avoiding her blow he pulled her dress from her shoulder.

"There was the executioner's brand—the fleur de lys."

At this time the war between England and France was at its height and the siege of La Rochelle was beginning. Richelieu, learning all that d'Artagnan had done, tried to buy him into his own service. d'Artagnan refused, knowing that refusal might cost him his life. The Three Musketeers set out now to discover the cardinal's next move. Eavesdropping, they heard Richelieu instruct Lady de Winter to go to London and there tell Buckingham to order that the English surrender, warning him that if the war continued Richelieu would expose the queen. If Buckingham refused, he was to be assassinated. For her part, the lady asked Richelieu for the death of d'Artagnan, who knew her secret, and of Madame Bonacieux, who had thwarted her so often.

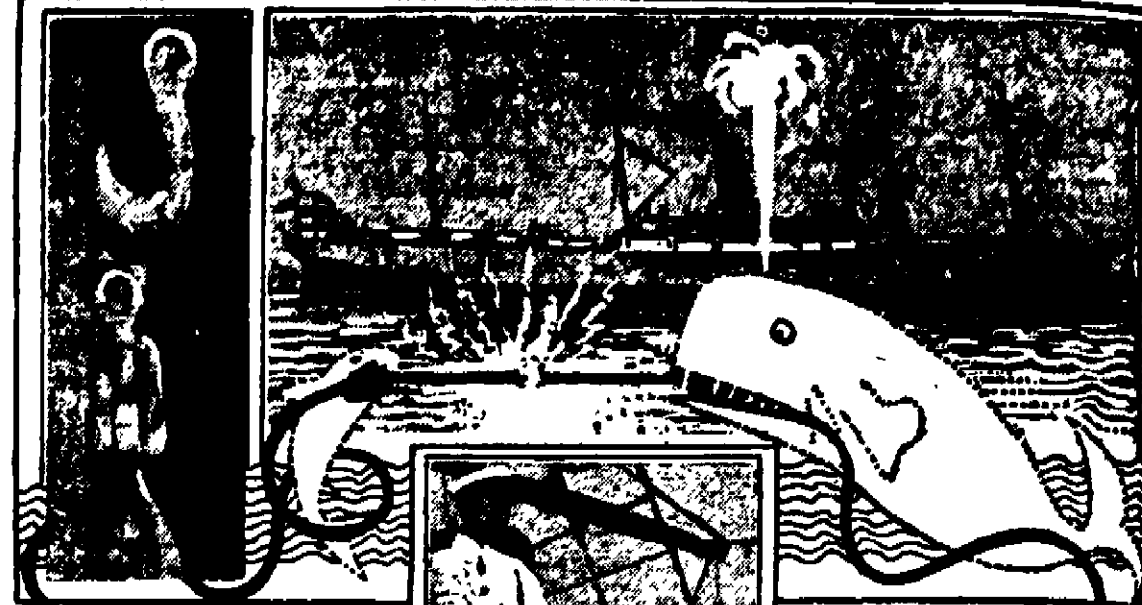

Half an hour later Athos was alone with the woman.

"The Count de la Fere," she cried, deathly pale.

"Yes, my lady," said Athos. "You thought me dead, as I thought you dead, and the name of Athos concealed the Count de la Fere, as the name of Lady de Winter concealed Anne de Breuil."

Athos took from his false wife the

Routing Enemies of the Cable

Section of apparatus used in repair work

TO the layman, the construction of a submarine cable would probably appear a very simple matter. It would seem that all that is necessary is to provide a pair of copper wires to act as conductors for the electrical impulses and to enclose these wires in some sort of covering to protect them from the action of the water. But it is far from being as elementary as that, according to an official of the All America Cables, who has been engaged in the operation of submarine cables along the coasts of Central and South America for the past twenty-five years. He divulges some interesting facts concerning the extreme care which is taken in the manufacture of cables in order to make submarine communication the rapid, certain method that it is today.

Water is the factor least to be feared. The enemies which have been most difficult to eliminate are submarine animals, some of them minute organisms, others among the largest beasts that roam the deep, such as whales and sharks. The tiny pests attack the cable with the idea of obtaining food while the cable's larger enemies seem actuated by blind hatred.

Anchor which raises cable to deck for repairs

Cableship of most improved type

It long ago became evident that, if submarine communication was to become a reliable medium, some means must be found to enclose these creatures. Accordingly, scientists set to work to figure out a cable that would be insect proof and also strong enough to resist the attacks of the cable's larger enemies. The result of their work is the cable of today.

A modern submarine cable is designed to meet the exacting conditions that are found at the bottom of the ocean. The copper conductor is encased in a protective cushion of gutta percha; this, in turn, is wound with heavy steel wire to add further protection and give the necessary weight and tensile strength; around this is more gutta percha and then comes an outside covering of jute, a waterproof substance. Thus protected, the cable is both insect and shark proof.

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK! November 15 to 20

Next week will be CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK in all the book stores. At that time we shall have an unusually attractive line of books for boys and girls.

Few things delight a child more than good books and few things are more wholesome or beneficial. MORE BOOKS IN THE HOME means more bright days, more good fun, more knowledge and more happiness. We extend a most cordial invitation to all the boys and girls to visit our store and inspect our new line of books selected especially for them. Our counters will be full of them, suitable for boys and girls of all ages.

We hope to see every boy and every girl in Kingston in our store next week.

The Bushel as a Weight

A bushel is now regarded as a definite weight rather than a measure of cubic contents. Various products, however, have different weights to the bushel. Wheat, according to the bureau of crop estimates, weighs 60 pounds to the bushel.

Quick Printing

To celebrate the advance of the printer's art, particularly its increase in speed, a Caxton memorial Bible was wholly printed and bound in 12 hours in 1877. Only 100 copies were struck off.
